Who killed Custer at the Little Big Horn?

Comes now Stanley Vestal with the published claim that Sioux Chief White Bull told him in 1932 that he shot and killed the dashing general during the 1876 battle.

Vestal says he kept White Bull's story a secret all this time in the fear that "some hothead might harm the old man."

Well, maybe so. I'm tempted to toss the word "Bull" back at Vestal but will refrain because it's possible some old Indian did tell him he killed Custer.

I seem to remember that Rain-in-the-Face made the same claim when he visited Chicago at the age of 60.

My personal opinion, after reading everything available on the subject, is that nobody knew who actually fired the shot or shots that killed Custer. Several thousand whooping Sioux surrounded his 7th Cavalry detachment of 225 men and the smoke and confusion must have been tremendous.

* * *

It's an easy leap from Custer to the Civil War, in which he was a young cavalry general, and I've been reading the best one-volume history I ever encountered.

This is "A Short History of the Civil War," by Fletcher Pratt, now available in a 35-cent reprint.

When I was a kid the Civil War seemed incredibly remote despite the fact there were hundreds of GAR veterans in town.

Now, it doesn't seem so remote. The old soldiers are all gone, but Abe Lincoln, U. S. Grant, Robert E. Lee and the others have come alive in the pages of writers like Bruce Catton and Fletcher Pratt . . . Also, Gettysburg and Chickamauga are now understandable; I read about 'em as a kid but couldn't visualize the terrain and the complicated maneuvers.

The Civil War was the biggest thing that ever hit this country—and more and more Americans are re-discovering it.

We went to the Point Loma-Lincoln basketball game Friday night in the local gym.

When Coach Hil Crosthwaite walked off the floor, head down, after his Lomans lost 52-56, I knew how he felt.

He had done everything he could; his boys had played magnificently; they had victory within their grasp—but it slipped away in the last minute or two.

It was hard to take.

Lennie Serrano of Point Loma had been taking dead aim at the basket and sinking long shots all evening. Jerry Booth was hitting, too, and tall Andy Dunn looked good out there.

Point Loma led at the half and the three-quarters. But long-legged Luther Hayes grabbed rebounds and dunked a couple to put Lincoln ahead at the end.

Quite a player, this Hayes.

Girl Scout Cookies Going Fast; Sale To Benefit Camp Program

"It seems everyone is sampling Girl Scout cookies this year," said Mrs. Harold C. Smith, chairman of the annual cookie sale held by the Girl Scout Council of San Diego County, Inc.

"So far the sale has been very successful. We are pleased with results," she said.

The Girl Scout Council, a Red Feather agency, derives most of its support from this source. These funds are not available for building and camp equipment, however. Cookie sales, so far, have enabled Girl Scouts to meet their needs without fund drives. The sale is approved by the Community Chest.

Mrs. Smith emphasized the fact that every Scout, from Brownie to Senior Scouts, realizes that the cookies she sold helped pay for the buildings and campfire circles for her and thousands of other girls to use and enjoy in the years to come.

Girl Scout troops also receive financial benefit from the sale, three cents per box sold. There are also prizes for top sales girls in each division.

Recognition is offered every girl who sells 36 boxes or more by "Fair Share Cards' 'signed by the council president, Mrs. Walter W. Rockey.

Residents Asked Not To Water Gardens Today

Cut-over of the southern end of the City's new Murray pipeline set for today (Thursday, Feb. 14) will affect the northern section of the city, Carleton J. Peterson, Water Department superintendent of operations and maintenance reported.

During the 24-hour period of the cut-over, residents of Point Loma, the beach area, Linda Vista, Clairemont, Allied Gardens and Kearney Mesa are asked to refrain from garden watering, car washing or home laundering if they can possibly avoid it, Peterson said.

The existing Murray pipeline serving the northern communities will be out of service during this period, although the Water Department expects to maintain normal service through community reservoirs. The only threat, Peterson said, would be in the event of a break in existing lines, or in case of fire. The entire program has been coordinated with the San Diego Fire Department.

Cal Western 'U' Players To Present 'The Learned Ladies' On 2 Weekends

Following the popular trend of the day in producing famous classical plays in modern dress, the California Western University Players will present Moliere,s well-known comedy, "The Learned Ladies" in the Little Theatre of Solomon Hall on the evenings of Feb. 28, March 1 and 2, and the following weekend of March 8 and 9.

"The Learned Ladies" has been included in the repertoire of the Comedie Francaise, the national theatre of France, ever since its first production in 1672. Its theme, the question of whether a woman should pursue domesticity or a career, is more applicable today than when it was written. And consequently lends itself most effectively to modern dress.

Moliere, according to Bernard Sobel in his Theatre Hand Book, was "the greatest French comic dramatist of all time and one of the greatest in the world."

The California Western University Players is a happy combination of town and gown, and the only such group in San Diego. The players are composed not only of students and faculty of the University, but also residents of the city.

Among the students appearing in this play are Ann Newell, Otto Cramer, Charlotte Stahl, Philip Harstine, James Heller, Donald Pauley, and Ronnie Nichols. Cast in the leading roles, residents of Point Loma, and who have appeared to advantage in other productions of the California Western University Players are Joseph Hitt, Sylvia Kircher, Marian Bear, and appearing for the first time Bernice Townsend and Marianne Van Stelle.

Several groups have signified their intention of acting as sponsors for this play, among them being the Woman's Society of the Point Loma Methodist Church, Mrs. Rose Thornberry, chairman.

Camellias Blooming In California

While winter reigns in the eastern United States, many California gardeners are enjoying the colorful blooms of their Camellia bushes. The blooms of this flowering evergreen begin in the fall and last to early spring —months that are colorless except for the Camellia.

Now in bloom throughout the state are the white, formal-shaped Alba Plena Chandleri with pink and white variegation; the popular Donckelari, red marbled white in varying degrees; and the pale pink Dr. Tinsley. The first All America Camellia selection is also in bloom; it is Cinderella, a fimbriated and serrated shell pink with white edges. All these varieties are Camellia Japonicas.

Several years ago many new varieties of the Camellia Reticulata were brought to this country from China. After being grown in test gardens for many seasons they are gradually being made available to gardeners. Many of these varieties bloom in the middle of the winter. Butterfly Wings, rose pink blossoms with wavy petals; Crimson Robe, camine and red; and Shot Silk, brilliant pink, are three such varieties.

Camellias can be grown in a number of ways, depending on the type you are working with, says the California Association of Nurseryman. All can be grown in containers; their rich, glossy foliage offering a pleasing contrast against tubs of redwood or ceramic material. The three Camellia types are also attractive planted in garden beds.

Most adaptable of the three, the Sasanque's habit of growth is a graceful, drooping one and therefore the plant can be grown as an espalier subject, a vine, hedge, even ground cover.

Camellias need some sun—some kinds will take quite a bit—but a site that is shady or partially shady most of the day is best for most. As for soil and climate, the Camellia has proven itself amazingly tolerant of a wide variety of both. Nevertheless it's best to start your plants off correctly. Good Camellia culture calls for perfect drainage, acid soil, a mulch of peat or compost to keep the roots cool, acid fertilizer and moist soil.

Though these instructions on Camellia care may sound complicated you'll find that Camellias are really quite easy to grow—and so rewarding. Brighten the corner where you live and garden with Camellias.

Rock Cod Banks Produce Limits

Although there will be other surface fishing tests at the Coronado Islands when conditions are more favorable, rock cod, lings, cow cod and other choice morsels of the rocky ledges are in no immediate danger of losing their grip on the deep sea angling multitudes.

First surface test at the Islands of the 1957 season failed to turn up either yellows or bonito, but hardly could have been held under less favorable conditions. Skipper Offie Collins, who conducted the experiment, said that it was foggy, misty, and water colder than normal, but catch consisted of good hauls of calico and rock bass as well as bottom fish.

At the same time, boats working the rock cod banks nine miles southwest of Point Loma continued to bring in limit catches of big red cod topped off by a few whopping big lings and cow cod.

Among Point Loma-Ocean Beach area anglers who finished well up on the list of top rank anglers for the week were: Clark W. Johnson, Oliver Meyer, J. D. Vick, E. R. Evans, Major Harry Halliday, H. W. Bolin and G. E. Berenson.

HOME ON WHEELS with ctu..

How modern lighting and its effective control can bring added beauty, safety, and even health to your home will be demonstrated in the luxurious Luxtrol "home on wheels" which will visit Point Loma Feb. 19 and 20 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This custom-built highway coach, containing six attractively decorated rooms—hall, living room, kitchen, bedroom, and bathroom—will be open for admission-free public inspection at Carlton & Rosecrans, the Safeway Store, under sponsorship of the San Diego Gas & Electric Company. It is one of the three displays traveling the United States visiting Americans in their home towns to show them the latest developments in home lighting and its control.

Visitors to the "home on wheels" will be able to demonstrate for themselves how 30 different applications of controlled light create and change interior decoration effects throughout the home.

Cub Pack 510

The first months of 1957 have been full of activity for Cub Pack 510, Sacred Heart Parish, Ocean Beach.

Although snow storms postponed a family outing to Mt. Palomar, the cubs spent an interesting evening of star-gazing at their January pack meeting. Assistant Cubmaster William Montero demonstrated a model of the Mt. Palomar telescope, Den 2 presented a skit involving satellites and Martians, and Brewster Cronkite, using two Jr. Planetarium globes, projected the heavens on the ceiling of the Parish Hall, and held the boys spellbound with the legends of the constellations.

Cubs Danny Webster, Paul Donais, Jimmy Nolan, Harry Weiss, Michael Brown, Stephen Schaller, Gene Sherman and William Montero received awards.

During scouting week, thanks to the cooperation of the Ocean Beach Home Appliance Store, Pack 510 was able to display its crafts.

Sunday, Feb. 10, at the Father and son Holy Name Society breakfast, the Pack was invested by Monsignor Dillon.

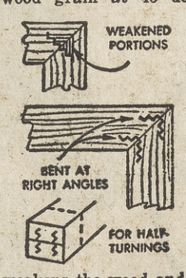
Handy Jim's FIXIN-UP TIPS For the Home

Corrugated Fasteners

POPULAR MECHANICS has some excellent suggestions for the proper use of corrugated fasteners, a convenient means of holding mitered joints. The common but incorrect method is shown in the top detail—crossing the wood grain at 45 degrees.



This weakens the wood and gives the joint little strength.

Instead, the magazine suggests bending the fasteners at right angles as shown in the center detail. Then they will be in line with the wood grain.

Another good tip: Use corrugated fasteners having widths less than half the thickness of the stock to be joined. It's wise also to drive them from opposite sides, situating them so they are not opposite each other.

To make a split turning involving two pieces of wood, join the pieces with the corrugated fasteners driven into the stock beyond the limits of the turning.

Pedestrian Deaths Increase In 1957

Pedestrian deaths have increased at an alarming rate during the first five weeks of 1957, according to figures released by the San Diego County Traffic Safety Council.

"Six of our first 12 traffic fatalities in San Diego County this year have been pedestrians," Ronald T. Strong, Council president said. "Three of these deaths occured in San Diego, one in Coronado, one in El Cajon, and one in Cardiff."

The Traffic Safety Council records show that in all of 1956 only 33 pedestrians lost their lives in San Deigo County traffic. Fifteen were killed in San Diego, 10 on rural roads, three in Oceanside, two in El Cajon, and one in Coronado, La Mesa and National City.

Pointing out that all pedestrians killed so far in 1957 have been 50 years or more old, Strong urged both motorists and pedestrians to drive and walk with extreme care, especially during the winter and early spring months when longer periods of darkness reduce visibility.

One out of every six patents issued by the United States Patent Office is related to motor vehicles, reports the National Automobile Club.

Q: Should a person who has had non-paralytic polio take Salk shots?

A: Yes. Salk shots are advisable for every person 40 years of age and under, regardless of whether he has had paralytic or non-paralytic polio. There are three families of polio virus. A person who has had polio may have been exposed only to one family of virus and may still be susceptible to the other two.

'Balance' On TV

The study of child behavior at two and three years of age will be the topic of "Balance," Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 10.

Subtitled, "Terrible Twos and Trusting Threes," the program will show what to expect from youngsters in this age group, and will offer suggestions on how parents can deal constructively with the problems they present.

In addition to presenting a film on this subject, the program will feature a discussion period with Dr. John D. Robuck, a San Diego psychiatrist, and Beryle Campbell, associate professor of education, State College.

The series is jointly sponsored by the San Diego Mental Health Association, a Red Feather agency; KFSD-TV; and the State Department of Mental Hygiene.

HEALTH FOR ALL

The question of television for children is still being debated by the experts. And where does that leave parents? Right where we were before either TV or radio were invented.

In the long run, parents have to decide for themselves what activities are best for each individual child. Our parents had to decide whether the Saturday afternoon movie would harm us physically or emotionally. There was no evidence on which the experts could base a firm yes or no answer, until a whole generation had grown up with it. In the same way we can only guess at the effects of television on the generation which has watched it from the play pen.

So what do we do? We listen to the best advice we can get, adjust it to the circumstances in our own homes and to the personalities of our own children and then decide.

On the physical side, we can get some pretty firm advice from the medical profession. When you have a child's eyes checked, be sure to ask how much viewing and what conditions of viewing are safe for your child's eyes. The family doctor, too, should be asked about TV. He knows your child's physical and nervous condition. His advice on the amount, type of program and time of day for viewing should be heeded. (Not to mention the fact that "the doctor said" is a good way to end a TV argument.)

There's one thing all the experts agree on—that TV should not take the place of active play. Children of pre-school and early school years shouldn't have much time for just sitting and watching action on a screen. They should be climbing, throwing, rolling, banging, splashing, running.

Television sometimes seems the easiest way to keep the children occupied. But even when bad weather forces them indoors, much of their play should involve active, first-hand experiences. TV must not crowd out the natural activities which are necessary to normal growth and development.

(This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by the San Diego County Tuberculosis and Health Association.)

Q: How long a period of immunity does Salk vaccine give?

A: That has not yet been determined, but presumably it is a long time. Children receiving the first inoculations in 1953 still have appreciable protection, and the study is still being continued

1st National Ranks High Among Banks

According to figures just released, The First National Trust & Savings Bank of San Diego ranks 146th among the nation's approximately 14,000 banks, making it San Diego County's largest independent bank.

The statistics, prepared by the trade publication, The American Banker, are based on total deposits and are compiled semi-annually.

During 1956 deposits at First National increased to an all-time high of 178 million dollars. This represents an increase of more than 15 million over 1955 when the bank stood in 159th place nationally.

Q: Is Salk vaccine safe?

A: Yes. Since 1955 millions of doses of Salk vaccine have been given with absolute safety and with effectiveness. Last year there were no polio deaths in the United States among persons who had received all three Salk injections, and in California no confirmed case of polio occurred in any person who had completed the series of three shots.

12 of 62 major U. S. markets receive all livestock by truck, reports the National Automobile Club.
